There are certain things in life that we tend to associate with something else (peanut butter and jelly, liver and onions, fried chicken and the 4th of July, etc.). From God’s perspective, we will discover that asking and trusting God for what we need goes together with thanking and praising God for what He provides. Both what we need for life and what we are provided with for life ultimately come from God. Thus, we need for Him to be in the center of our lives. May I encourage you to find ways every day to express your trust in Him and your thanks to Him!
